If the Cubs could bat against Rube Marquard all year they would have top-heavy batting records. The mark lasted two and a third innings yesterday, during which time the West Siders rapped him for six hits and four runs.

Larry Cheney won his eighth straight game. He would have scored a shut-out, but Sheckard dropped a fly in the fifth, and three New York tallies resulted. Six hits were knocked out of Larry.

Marquard slipped in the second and fell all the way in the third. Singles by Zimmerman and Archer, a sacrifice and a double by Saier scored two in the second.

In the third successive singles by Sheck, Miller and Tinker scored one. Zim sacrificed. Saier and Evers were passed, forcing in a run. Caldwell took the mound for New York. Meyers tried to nail Evers off first and shot him in the foot, Tinker scoring when the ball squirted to right field. That was all for the Cubs.

John Evers was canned for kicking when called out at second. The Trojan may draw a suspension for the rest of the year. Evers is a good player, but his batting and fielding cannot be used when he is on the bench.

Tinker plugged two of the nine hits posted by Chicago.
